

Industry Days

BCECA has just completed its 2018 / 19 programme of Industry Day events. Throughout this academic year, 12 universities were visited with over 1500 students attending the BCECA workshops to learn more about working in the engineering contracting sector. Competing in teams, the students completed a series of activities that introduced them to the engineering project life cycle. The 12 events were facilitated by a total of 52 volunteers drawn from across the BCECA membership, ranging from recent graduate engineers to senior project and chief engineers.

Dr Donglin Zhao, Course Director and Senior Lecturer in Chemical Engineering of Southbank University commented, "I have received fantastic feedback from my third-year students. They really appreciated the value of the day for application to their design projects. We are very grateful to BCECA and the facilitators. They did a brilliant job!"

It was attended by 16 representatives from BCECA Member companies and their in-house agencies. The focus of the meeting was on the steps and activities to be undertaken by BCECA Members in order to prepare for the reforms. Three BCECA working groups are being formed for this purpose:

- In-house agency representatives
- Tax specialists
- Communication & government relations

If you haven't already nominated your representatives for the above groups, contact BCECA today.
